Cuba

reopens its borders to travelers
from all over the world

Cuba is reopening all its borders to international travel on November 15, a decision that takes into account the positive control scenario in the face of COVID-19, the tendency to a decrease in cases in all its provinces and the expected immunization of 90% of its inhabitants by November. In addition, airport, hotel and other personnel who interact with travelers have been the first to be vaccinated and will get a booster dose to reinforce their protection.

This will make it possible to implement measures such as the elimination of the mandatory quarantine for travelers as of November 7, the return of mobility between provinces (which boosts the development of tourist circuits) and the revival of cultural activities.

The health protocols are being adapted to the new context, since upon arrival, the international vaccination certification will be required from travelers. Failing that, they must show the negative result of a PCR performed no more than 72 hours before arrival in Cuba. At the entry points to the country, health personnel will carry out temperature checks and take random samples, while epidemiological surveillance is maintained in the accommodation facilities.

Other markets such as Mexico, Panama and the Dominican Republic are also increasing their presence in the island's tourist environment. Cubana de Aviación is resuming its routes from Argentina and Spain, and other traditional airlines such as Air France, Air Europa and Iberia are increasing their flights. Tourists from the Asian continent will have Turkish Airlines, which will connect this region of the world with the Cuban capital.

All these elements make it possible to expect the arrival of some 100,000 international tourists in the period between November 15 and the end of the year. The response of the tour operators and airlines has exceeded expectations, a fact that allows trust in a very encouraging winter.

Travelers will find in Cuba renovated facilities and a multitude of new services, such as improvements in Internet connectivity, the use of free Wi-Fi for 30 minutes at airports, the new platforms for the online sale of services and the ease of making digital payments.

The tourism authorities in Cuba invite vacationers from all over the world to visit a renewed and safe destination, which has thousands of attractions in its beaches, cities and nature reserves. All conditions have been created and travelers will especially feel the hospitality of the Cuban people, ready to again welcome friends from all over the world.

In private rental houses, the owners are responsible for timely reporting any guest with symptoms. Tourists with a positive PCR will be transferred to health institutions for their attention and care. The mandatory use of a mask is maintained within air and port terminals, as well as throughout the country.

The ten international airports throughout the archipelago, as well as marinas and other arrival points, are ready for reopening. There is great interest among the tour operators that work the Cuba Destination, and numerous requests have been received from Canada, the United Kingdom and other European countries. Russia, a market that has been flying to Varadero and Cayo Coco for several weeks, is planning growth based on itineraries that depart from new cities.

Hola Sun/Caribe Sol

Travel to Cuba from Canada

Hola Sun/Caribe Sol, a tour operator specialized in trips from Canada to the largest of the Caribbean islands, restarted its operations in collaboration with the OWG airline.

To enjoy a stay on Cuba's beautiful beaches, get to know its heritage cities and be in contact with the nature and culture of this country, the first step is to visit the Hola Sun/Caribe Sol website. The information is available at www.holasunholidays.ca (in English) and www.caribesol.ca (in French)

The departures of flights of the Canadian airline OWG (acronym for Off We Go) will be from Toronto and Montreal and they will arrive at the airports of the main tourist destinations in the country. They will have several weekly frequencies, which will allow organizing customized travel packages. The Canadian airline OWG is a subsidiary of the Quebec-based charter airline Nolinor Aviation, and in July of last year announced the partnership with Hola Sun/Caribe Sol.

Canadian travelers will be able to visit again destinations such as Santa Clara and the nearby keys of its north coast, among them Cayo Santa María, which offers perfect hotels for trips with the family, for couples or with friends. They can also visit cities like Trinidad, with its cobbled streets, its artisans and its museums. In Cienfuegos they can tour the beautiful city, visit the dolphinarium or go diving at Rancho Luna. In Cuba's eastern region they will be able to fly to Holguín and enjoy its beautiful beaches, or to Santiago de Cuba, the most Caribbean of Cuban cities.

In Cuba, as in the hotels and non-hotel facilities which have the Tourism + Hygienic and Safer certification, the airports that will receive the OWG flights have gone through a process of certification and preparation of their personnel.

All are ready to provide the required attention to travelers, following the recommendations of the World Health Organization and the national Ministries of Public Health and Tourism to guarantee health safety in all their processes.

Centennial of the Bodega Don Pancho

Where Cuban Rum's secrets are keep

There are many good reasons to visit Santiago de Cuba, the most Caribbean of the country's cities, and also the cradle of Cuban rum, as many know it in the world. To honor that second reason, today we invite you to visit one of the city's treasures, closely linked to its history and traditions: the so-called Cathedral of Cuban Rum.

Santiago de Cuba, with more than 500 years of history, treasures the secrets of the elaboration of Cuban light rum, an exquisite mixture that has as its sacred place the Cathedral of Cuban Rum, a title very well given to the Bodega Don Pancho, which is reaching its 100 years of existence.

It opened its doors in 1921 and since then it has protected the bases of aged rums. It has been a witness and executor of the creation of the exquisite blends that the Cuban Rum Masters turn into famous and prized rums. In this almost magical space, between white oak barrels, more than a century and a half of traditions are preserved, related to the technique of distillation and aging. Everything that comes out of Bodega Don Pancho carries a quality seal, which is recognized by experts and clients from all over the world.

According to the archives of the province of Santiago de Cuba and the testimony of the Rum Masters of the Hero City, the name of Don Pancho is due to the fact that its first manager's name was Don Francisco Savigne y Lombard, whom they called Pancho. It is said that this man participated in the war of 1895 with Emilio Bacardí Moreau, who was the first mayor of the city of Santiago de Cuba. At that time, at the beginning of the 20th century, Bacardí was the president of the rum company and when the aging warehouse opened, he appointed Francisco Savigne as manager.

Currently the Don Pancho warehouse is the largest in the country, both in size and also in the amount of aged liquid. It is the one that houses the most barrels with the oldest aged rum bases in Cuba.

never sleeps inside the barrels. The truth is that with the traffic of the trains vibrations occur in the land, and since the Bodega is so near, the liquid in the barrels is encouraged to vibrate and fouling is avoided, which is so damaging to the aging process.

This facility, in addition to the areas dedicated exclusively to the creation and work of the Rum Masters and other specialists, has a rum sales and tasting service in its tavern. There is a space dedicated to the typical rums of the city of Santiago de Cuba.

The centennial of the Bodega Don Pancho is an important celebration for the Cuba Ron S.A. Corporation, which is preparing a group of commemorative actions that include the

In order to admire the Bodega Don Pancho, it is necessary to go to Paseo La Alameda, very close to the railway station, and then visitors will find themselves in front of the sacred site that keeps the secrets of Cuban rums. They will also be in the exact coordinates of the place where special rums are produced, in limited editions, with high quality and a high degree of aging, a provocation for the curiosity of collectors and an invitation for those with exquisite palates.

In Santiago de Cuba you can also learn about some myths linked to the manufacture of light rums, as some say that the climate of the region, one of the hottest in the country, together with earthquakes, it is the area of Cuba with the most seismic activity, influence the rums that are produced there.

Others grant the railroad an indirect and almost mystical participation in the process of manufacturing rums in this eastern Cuban city, stating that thanks to its presence the rum remodeling of the Bodega and other rum production areas. The creation of a limited edition rum has also been proposed, which will also serve to remember such an important moment. From our pages we will invite you to get to know that new secret of Cuban rum, which will be unveiled to honor a very special Cathedral in Santiago de Cuba, the Bodega Don Pancho.

The medical work is complemented by the Nursing service, which has an accompaniment system, caregivers and occupational therapists. Psychological support is also offered by specialists and the medical transportation service, with medical or nursing accompaniment.

The Clinic's programs available to travelers include different types of check-ups: basic check-ups, preventive check-ups for elderly or hypertensive patients, and complementary cardiovascular, pediatric and comprehensive outpatient medicine tests. This is the only Cuban tourist destination whose Clinic offers Hemodialysis service for travelers with chronic kidney failure.

The Varadero Clinic has updated its health protocols, to adapt them to the new international health reality and to the demands of the Cuban Ministry of Public Health. The Iberostar Group, present for more than 25 years in Cuba, manages about 20 hotels in the country, and works in favor of responsible tourism. Its commitment to quality is reinforced with the opening of the Coral Level at Iberostar Selection Esmeralda, a hotel that will quickly become a benchmark when talking about Cayo Cruz, the youngest tourist destination in Cuba.

Three CLASSIC HOTELS in HAVANA

In Havana, three hotels of the Gran Caribe Group, recognized for their historical-cultural significance and the excellence of their services, are now ready to receive new guests, once the activity of international travel is resumed on November 15.

Located in the central Vedado district, the NH Capri Hotel has received since last February those guests who, upon arrival in Cuba, took advantage of the quarantine period established by the health authorities. This stage of less influx of travelers was used to implement improvements in technological systems such as air conditioning, and investments were made in the swimming pool and kitchen areas, restoration of furniture, painting and other details in the rooms. As of this new season, it will start offering free Internet connection service via Wi-Fi.

NH Capri has a history that dates back to 1957, when it was inaugurated as an American mafia business. After the revolutionary triumph, it continued to receive travelers who enjoyed its excellent services, and after the renovations completed in 2014, the facility was included in the portfolio of the prestigious Spanish chain NH Hotels.

For its part, the Hotel Nacional de Cuba, a jewel of the country's hotel industry, reopened its doors last December 30, in commemoration of its 90th anniversary. Since then it has catered to more than 14,800 guests. New comers who visit it will find a completely renovated hotel, with both swimming pools revamped, new sale outlets and areas for enjoyment. In these months, its managers have maintained contact with collaborators, guests and tour operators, and it is ready to begin international operations.

The Inglaterra Hotel was inaugurated on December 23, 1875, and has welcomed such illustrious guests as Sarah Bernhardt and María Félix, famous ballerina Anna Pavlova, poets Julián del Casal and Rubén Darío, singers Enrico Caruso, Imperio Argentina and José Mujica, playwrights Federico García Lorca and Jacinto Benavente, British politician Winston Churchill and bullfighter Luis Mazzantini.

Due to its architectural, cultural and historical values, the Inglaterra Hotel was declared a National Monument, a condition with which the aforementioned Hotel Nacional de Cuba was also distinguished.

A symbol of history, culture and Cubanness, the Hotel Nacional has hosted hundreds of celebrities from the arts, sciences and politics. Its rooms have witnessed the visit of public figures such as Winston Churchill, Frank Sinatra, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, scientist Alexander Fleming, countless European heads of state and monarchs, among others.

Finally, the Inglaterra Hotel, the oldest in the Cuban capital that is still in operation, has also kept receiving travelers in quarantine and at the same time has made improvements that have benefited this establishment. Among the most significant are the restoration of the lobby, with its classic Seville tiles and its refined carpentry.

FIVE reasons to go DIVING in CUBA

With more than 5,000 km of coastline and an area that includes 4,195 keys and islets in the archipelago, Cuba is considered one of the most complete diving destinations in the Caribbean. Cuban tourism and environmental authorities promote this activity as one of the most spectacular to be carried out in beach destinations, always taking care of the conservation of the underwater environment.

Through its innovative www.marinasmarlin.com website, the Marlin Nautical and Marinas Enterprise offers detailed information on the offers and possibilities for diving in the largest of the Caribbean islands.

Here are five of the many reasons to dive in Cuba:

1 In Cuba it is possible to dive all year round. The specialized centers operate every day, as the tropical climate softens the marked difference between summer and winter that affects other destinations.

2 Underwater visibility can reach 50 meters from November to May. In summer it decreases to a range of 15-20 meters, but it is also very favorable for enjoying underwater landscapes and contemplative diving.

3 During the winter season, the southern coast of Cuba remains calm in the face of cold fronts coming from North America. This advantage is used by numerous facilities such as those located in Ancón, Faro Luna, Cayo Largo del Sur or Playa Girón.

4 The proximity of the dive sites to the mainland means that the navigation time to reach them is very short. In some cases, the use of boats is not even required.

5 Diving in Cuba is very safe and the facilities that organize the dives accumulate more than 15 years of experience. Instructors with international certification and knowledge of several languages always accompany the expeditions, whether they are experienced divers or beginners.

There are more than 500 well-studied dive sites in the Cuban archipelago. The 1,500 recorded marine species, more than 50 corals, 200 types of sponges and the numerous schools of tropical fish are the attractions that await those who love underwater life.

Blue Diamond waits for you in Cuba

Blue Diamond Resorts, a Canadian hotel chain that manages numerous establishments in Cuba, invites you to once again enjoy the impressive white-sand beaches and the emblematic cities of the largest of the Caribbean islands, offering in its hotels the first-class amenities that are the hallmark of this company.

Jazz Plaza Festival 2022

From Havana to Santiago de Cuba

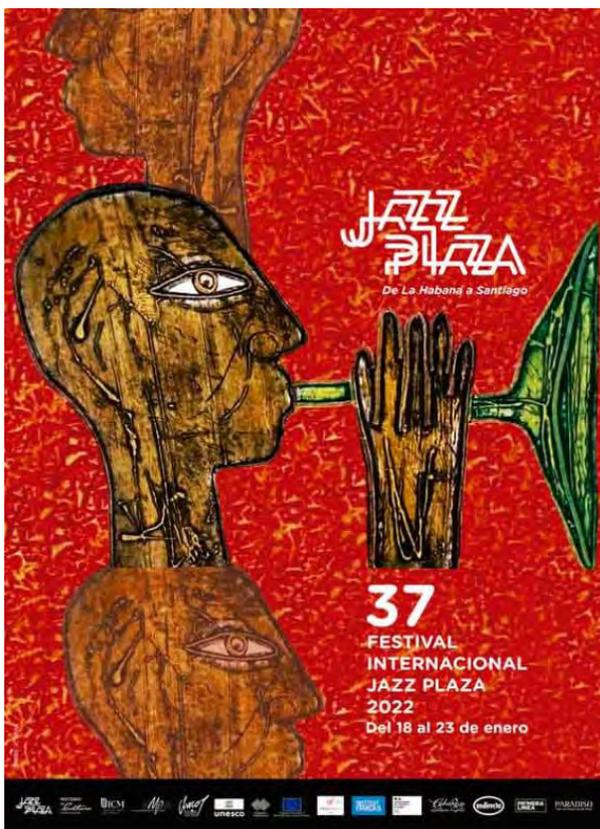

The 2022 Jazz Plaza International Festival invites you to enjoy the best music at the start of the year, since its 37th edition is scheduled for January 18-23, an excellent time to travel to Cuba. Ever since its presentation, the organizers have drawn attention to the alliance between music and visual arts, because this year the event's poster has been made by Eduardo Roca (Choco), National Prize for Plastic Arts.

It is a festival with Jazz as the motive, but in itself, it is a festival for all music. Its realization has been planned as a hybrid event, since it will maintain its presence on social networks, an experience lived in the 2021 edition, and also in physical venues, such as the Plaza Casa de la Cultura, where the Festival arose and to which its name pays tribute. In Havana, the festival will reach the Karl Marx, Nacional and América theaters, and other spaces such as the Cuban Art Factory, the Cuba Pavilion and the Mella Theater Gardens. In Santiago de Cuba it will hit the stages of the Sala Dolores, the Iris Jazz and the Patio de la UNEAC.

Jazz Plaza 2022 will have the logistical support of Transcultura, a UNESCO program that for the first time joins the organization of the event. It does so with the proposal of holding small parallel workshops, which facilitate exchange between artists from various countries and promote their insertion into the European market.

The 2022 Jazz Plaza International Festival program includes the long-awaited concerts and the Leonardo Acosta in Memoriam theoretical meeting. This is a highly anticipated musical event every year in Cuba, because in addition to bringing together the most important names in the genre worldwide, it serves as a launching pad for new talents.

IBERO-AMERICAN SUMMIT ON ACCESSIBLE TOURISM

This December, the Hotel Nacional de Cuba will host the 4th Ibero-American Summit on Accessible Tourism, which will take place from the 15th to 19th.

This event is organized by the Cuban Ministry of Tourism and the Ibero-American Network of Accessible Tourism, and has the support, among others, of the World Tourism Organization (UNWTO), the ECOTUR Travel Agency, the Skedio Travel Group, and the Gran Caribe Hotel Group.

The Summit will have the participation of recognized experts in accessible tourism worldwide, representatives of international organizations in the tourism sector and representatives of tourist destinations. Suppliers of equipment for tourist facilities and services that guarantee the enjoyment of accessible and inclusive tourism will also participate.

Within the framework of the event, the Declaration of Havana for Accessible and Inclusive Tourism in Latin America and the Caribbean will be presented and signed. Representatives of the tourism sector from the governments of Ibero-American countries have been summoned for this important occasion.
